

Miscellaneous.

Letter from Mr. Cooke, to Mr. Ingleton, Boston, New-England, (North America) January 14, 1811.

DEAR SIR,

This is the first letter I have written to Europe, from which my departure was only the result of a few hours deliberation. On the 4th of Oct. last, I sailed from Liverpool, and arrived at N. York on the 12th of November. The latter part of the voyage very tempestuous, and many vessels were lost. I was received by Mr. Price, one of the Managers, in a very friendly and hospitable manner, and at whose house I remained while I continued in that city. On Wednesday the 21st of Nov. I made my first appearance before an American audience, and was received by a splendid & crowded assemblage in a most flattering manner. I acted seventeen nights to some of the greatest houses ever known in the New World. My own night exceeded 400 guineas.

On the 29th of December, in company with Mr. Price, I set out, in one of the best passage boats I ever saw, for Newport, Rhode Island, which we reached, after a most pleasant trip, in 22 hours, and after a short stay, left it in a commodious carriage for this town. We slept on Sunday at Taunton, and arrived here on Monday. My first appearance was on Tuesday following in the new play of Richard, which was repeated the next night. This was also my first play in New York, where they had it three times, and so will the good people here. The house, filled as at New York, and my reception equally flattering. New York is the handsomest and largest house. We return to that city on Saturday the 29th, and about the 10th of March journey on to Philadelphia, from thence to Baltimore, where my engagement ends; but I shall return to New York, to embark for Liverpool. My time was passed at the last mentioned city in a most agreeable manner, as almost every day, not of business, we had parties at Mr. Price's or at the houses of some of the principal inhabitants. We are going on the same way here, with this exception, we are lodged at the Exchange Coffee House, one of the largest and most extraordinary buildings I ever saw, and of consequence I miss and regret the kind, polite attention of Mrs. P. at whose house I am lodged myself in my own, and feel highly gratified at the near prospect of returning to it. Mr. Bernard is one of the Managers here, but I believe, retires from it at the conclusion of the season. Theatricals are conducted at both Theatres in a very respectable manner, and the Companies superior to what I expected to meet; I may add much so.

G. F. COOKE.

LAW CASE.

On Monday last, at the Circuit Court of the U. States before Judge Livingston, came on the Trial of Capt. Nathaniel Williams of the ship William Tell, on a charge of murdering upon the high seas, one Christopher Towell, a seaman on board the said ship. Counsel for the prosecution, Messrs. Baldwin and Sampson; for the Defendant Messrs. Wells, Emmett, Gardner and Edwards.

This interesting trial continued from twelve o'clock at noon till eight in the evening. By that time the innocence of the defendant had been made so manifest, that his Council declined examining the rest of the witnesses, and proposed to submit the cause to the Jury, under the charge of the Court without argument; which being assented to, the Judge in a very clear and explicit manner declared that the indictment had not been supported, for that the testimony did not impute to the Defendant Malice of any kind express or implied; and that as to the cause of Towell's death, not one witness on behalf of the prosecution was worth a rush. That he had fallen a victim to scurvy as the defendant had very satisfactorily proved.

Upon another indictment against captain Williams for the murder of another seaman, John Hutchins, the Attorney for the United States, being satisfied of the impossibility of sustaining the charge, entered a Nolle prosequi.

The complaint against capt. Williams had been preferred last November, and he was committed by the Police Justices. Judge Livingston, however, upon a statement of facts on behalf of capt. W. being submitted to him, admitted him to bail. Since that time capt. W. has been with his family in the state of Massachusetts. The principal witnesses in his behalf, were Wm. Macey, his mate; Jeremiah Shepherd, a passenger and supercargo, and Gibbs West, who had ventured his life by coming on board the William Tell about 30 days before the end of the voyage although she was then almost a wreck. But when Williams' trial was about to come on, Mr. Macey was taken dangerously ill at Boston, and it was unknown whether Mr. Shepherd and Mr. West were. Undesignedly distressing circumstances, but supported by a consciousness of his own innocence, he presented himself before the court. Fortunately Mr. Shepherd and Mr. West were in the city and appeared in his behalf; and their testimony dispelled all doubt and suspicion, and produced the honorable acquittal of captain Williams in the honorable manner already stated.

The ship William Tell, left Gottenburgh on the 27th of August last, and in a passage of 83 days encountered very tempestuous weather; and during 60 days was in almost continual peril. Most of the ship's crew, and particularly all but one of the witnesses against capt. Williams, abandoned her to the winds and waves, refusing almost all manner of duty. He himself and the supercargo, (Mr. Shepherd) were then obliged to turn to and perform ordinary seamen's duty. And for 50 days capt. Williams did not sleep more than 5 hours, out of 24! Had it not been for his exertions, it is probable the lives of those would have been lost, who in return have sought his. But their charges being satisfactorily disproved, and utterly disbelieved, the respectability of capt. Williams' character remains not only unsullied, but is rendered brighter by the trial it has undergone.

CHARLESTON, April 12.

We are informed that Mr. OGILVIE intends, in a few days, to visit Savannah, and to deliver some of his Orations in that place, previous to his return to Virginia.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Adams, to Dr. Waterhouse, dated Petersburg, December 19, 1811.

"I hope the vaccine inoculation continues to flourish among us. It has been and still is extensively practised in this country. The small pox however is yet often fatal here—Of nineteen men who came in the ship Horace with us from America, three lost their lives by this distemper at Constadt last winter. I wish you could have a law that every man going to sea, and who has not had the small pox, shall previously undergo the inoculation for the time pox."

Another step up the Ladder of Independence. Every true American must rejoice when he is informed, that an article so necessary to the prosperity of the manufacturing interest of his country, as Burr Stoves, (commonly called French Buns) are to be had in the U. S. in quantities, more than sufficient for the consumption of all Europe, above what may ever be wanted for the use of America.

This valuable discovery has been made in North Carolina, where a gentleman of this city now has a number of hands employed in quarrying them. The quality is found equal to that of the best French Buns, and the quantity to all appearance inexhaustible, there being a mountain of them more than twenty miles in extent. Balt. E. P.

In the dilemma of a FOURTH act, an author once applied to Murphy for assistance—"Sir, (says he) I do not know how it has happened but I have killed every being but one in my tragedy, at the end of the fourth act, and I cannot contrive business for the 5th." "Sir, (replied Murphy) as the dramatic personae are defunct, what if you were to introduce their executors, administrators, and assigns?"

ELECTRIC COLUMN.

M. de Luc, of Windsor, has invented a machine, called the electric Column, which may be considered the most important discovery in the science of electricity since that of the Voltaic pile. By means of it he set some small bells ringing, which continued to do so without stopping for a period of 152 days. This long continuance renders it not improbable, that the weight of the clapper may be so adapted to the power of the apparatus, as to cause small bells to continue ringing for years together without intermission.

The French Chamber of Arts has presented to M. Appert, a premium of 15,000 francs, for his recent invention of preserving fruits, vegetables, meats, and all kinds of animal food, and even vegetable substances several years, on condition that his method be made public for the general good.

MADAME DE STAEL.

Many of our Gazettes announced that Madame de Staël is preparing to set out for the U. States in order to take possession of a considerable property which she has there. This information must be incorrect. It is certain that this lady is now at Blois, superintending the publication of her new work on Germany, which is to have the same character as that which she wrote upon Italy, under the title of Corinna. The impression is far advanced, and our literature will soon be enriched with this production. [Mercure de Paris.]

Mr. FOX.

It is mentioned that Mr. Trotter is employed in preparing for the London press, a work, which every admirer of the genius and virtues of Mr. Fox, will read with pleasure. mixed, doubtless, with melancholy—it is a Tour through Flanders, Holland, and France, in the year 1802, made in company with Mr. Fox by Mr. Trotter, when the former was presented to the French emperor. It is very much to be desired that Mr. Trotter would add some particulars of the last moments of his illustrious friend. No man in these kingdoms has, we believe, the same information, or felt more deeply on that melancholy & awful subject.

A sea capt. making tea for a party, paid no attention to the circumstance of a gentleman's having put his spoon in his cup, but filled it with tea. On this the gentleman informed the capt. that he had done so adding, "do you not see the spoon in my cup?" "And what of that?" said the sailor, "how was I to understand your private signals?"

FROM A LATE LONDON PAPER.

Mr. West's painting of the Miracles of our Saviour has been purchased by the Subscribers to the British Institution for 3000 guineas. The sum was raised by a subscription of 50 guineas each individual. The painting was originally destined for America.

The following observations were made in the British House of Commons on the 4th of March, in the debate on a proposed enquiry into the state of commercial credit:—Nat. Int.

"Mr. A. Baring thought that the enquiry into the general state of the trade ought to be postponed.—The object at present he understood to be, to ascertain whether commercial credit was not in a state requiring relief, if such relief could be administered. At a future period of the session, no doubt, it would be proper to go into the more general enquiry, and to expose completely the causes which had led to the lamentable situation in which commerce at present stood, that they might be aware in time to come.—But it was better to defer the more extended consideration. Whether the system of the Orders in Council, the plan of licences, and other measures of Government had not tended strongly to produce this sad effect would be a question at another time. But the fact was clear, that commerce was in a deplorable state, & he owned the measures of the right Honorable Gentlemen were a material cause of it.—If a house was on fire, the first consideration was to put it out, and afterwards to inquire into the causes which had occasioned it. The questions were distinct, and there would be a disadvantage in involving them; and, besides, if they were to proceed upon the more enlarged view the report could not be presented in less than a month. The Right Honorable Gentleman had said that our relations with America had no connection with the present commercial distress.—Whether or not we were right in our dispute with America, he would not now discuss; but when it was considered that America was a customer for twelve millions annually of our manufactures, it must appear a most extraordinary supposition that the stoppage of this trade would add nothing to our commercial distress. It was not to be doubted but this would add very considerably to the distress under which trade now laboured.

"Mr. Perceval said he had not said that the stoppage of so considerable a trade as that with America, had no connection with the depressed state of commerce. What he had stated was, that it was not connected with through any fault of the government.

SELECT POETRY.

[The following lines were written at the Callos, or Falls of the Mohawk River, by Thomas Moore.]

From rise of morn till set of sun,
I've seen the mighty Mohawk run,
And as I mark'd the woods of pine,
Along his mirror darkly shine;
Like tall and gloomy forms that pass
Before the wizard's midnight glass;
And as I view'd the hurrying pace,
With which he ran his turbid race,
Rushing like untid'd wild,
Thro' slanders that down'd and flow'd that amid!

Flying by every green recess,
That would him to his calm recess;
Yet sometimes turning with the wind,
As if to leave one look behind!
Oh! I have tho't and thinking sigh'd—
How like to thee, thou restless tide!
May be the lot, the life of him,
Who roams along thy waters' brim!
Thro' what alternate shades of woe,
And flow'd of joy, my path may go.
How many an humble still retreat,
May rise to court my weary feet,
While still pursuing, still ambitious,
I wander on nor dare to rest!
But, urgent as the doom that calls
Thy water to its destined falls,
I see the world's bewildering force,
Hurry my heart's devoted course!

From lapse to lapse, till life be done,
And the last current cease to run!
Oh, may my fall be bright as thine!
May leaving's forging rainbow shine,
Upon the mist that circles me,
As soft as now it hangs o'er thee!

PLEADING IN ASSUMPSIT.

JUST published by JAMES W. BURDITT, & Co. Boston, and for Sale, by FITZ-WYLLSON & POTTER, Richmond, price 5 dollars neatly bound.

A practical Treatise on Pleading in ASSUMPSIT, by Edward Lawes, Esq. of the Inner Temple, Barrister at Law. To which is added, the decisions of the American Courts, by Joseph Story.

Extract from the Advertisement to the present Edition.

"The elementary treatise on Pleading sometime since published by Mr. Lawes, received an approbation from the profession sufficiently extensive to ensure to his other labors a respectful attention.—First beautiful outline may be pronounced without hesitation the most finished and accurate illustration of the Theory of the science which has ever adorned the annals of the common law. The present work is designed to follow out into their details the leading principles and distinctions of one great division of the original plan, and the execution of it will in no degree impair the reputation already acquired by the author.

"In publishing from the London copy, the present Edition, it has been deemed advisable to select such American authorities as illustrated, confirmed, or impugned the doctrines of the text. To this object the notes are exclusively confined, and in no instance do they intrude on the reader the opinion of the Editor."

The above work was first published in London, in August last, where the publisher's price was one guinea and a half in boards, and it cannot be sold in this country under nine dollars.—The sheets of the volume now offered have been carefully examined, and it is presumed that this Edition is equally as well executed as the London copy, and sold for a much less price.

F. & P. have other law books, some new publications, & a general assortment of school-books for sale. April 12. w3w
